'Un lugar llamado Fracaso' is an internal brainstorming exercise in the form of 23 short stories about life, literature, dreams and failure. Because life is a continuing failure to find any kind of success, a failure in which the characters in the stories that make up this collection survive while waiting for a better future, which sometimes comes and sometimes does not. Life has placed them where they are, but they rebel against injustice, social constraints and their own failure. The same theme for different approaches, with different styles and processes, which make each story a new adventure.
