Benítez Reyes' new novel sets us in a moving meeting of five conspiracy theorists, in the midst of the pandemic, who allow their theories to run wildly to exotic conclusions, in contradiction of official information which they consider to be flagrant breaches of reality. Following the daily news and a logic far removed from reason, they comment, argue, discuss and pontificate about random scientific, geopolitical and socio-economic topics. A novel based on facts so real they seem pure fantasy; a story that make you laugh out loud with its arbitrary associations. A hilarious and shattering satire on alternative thinking.
